

Q4 2025

ANCHORAGE CONSUMER OPTIMISM INDEX

Sponsored by:

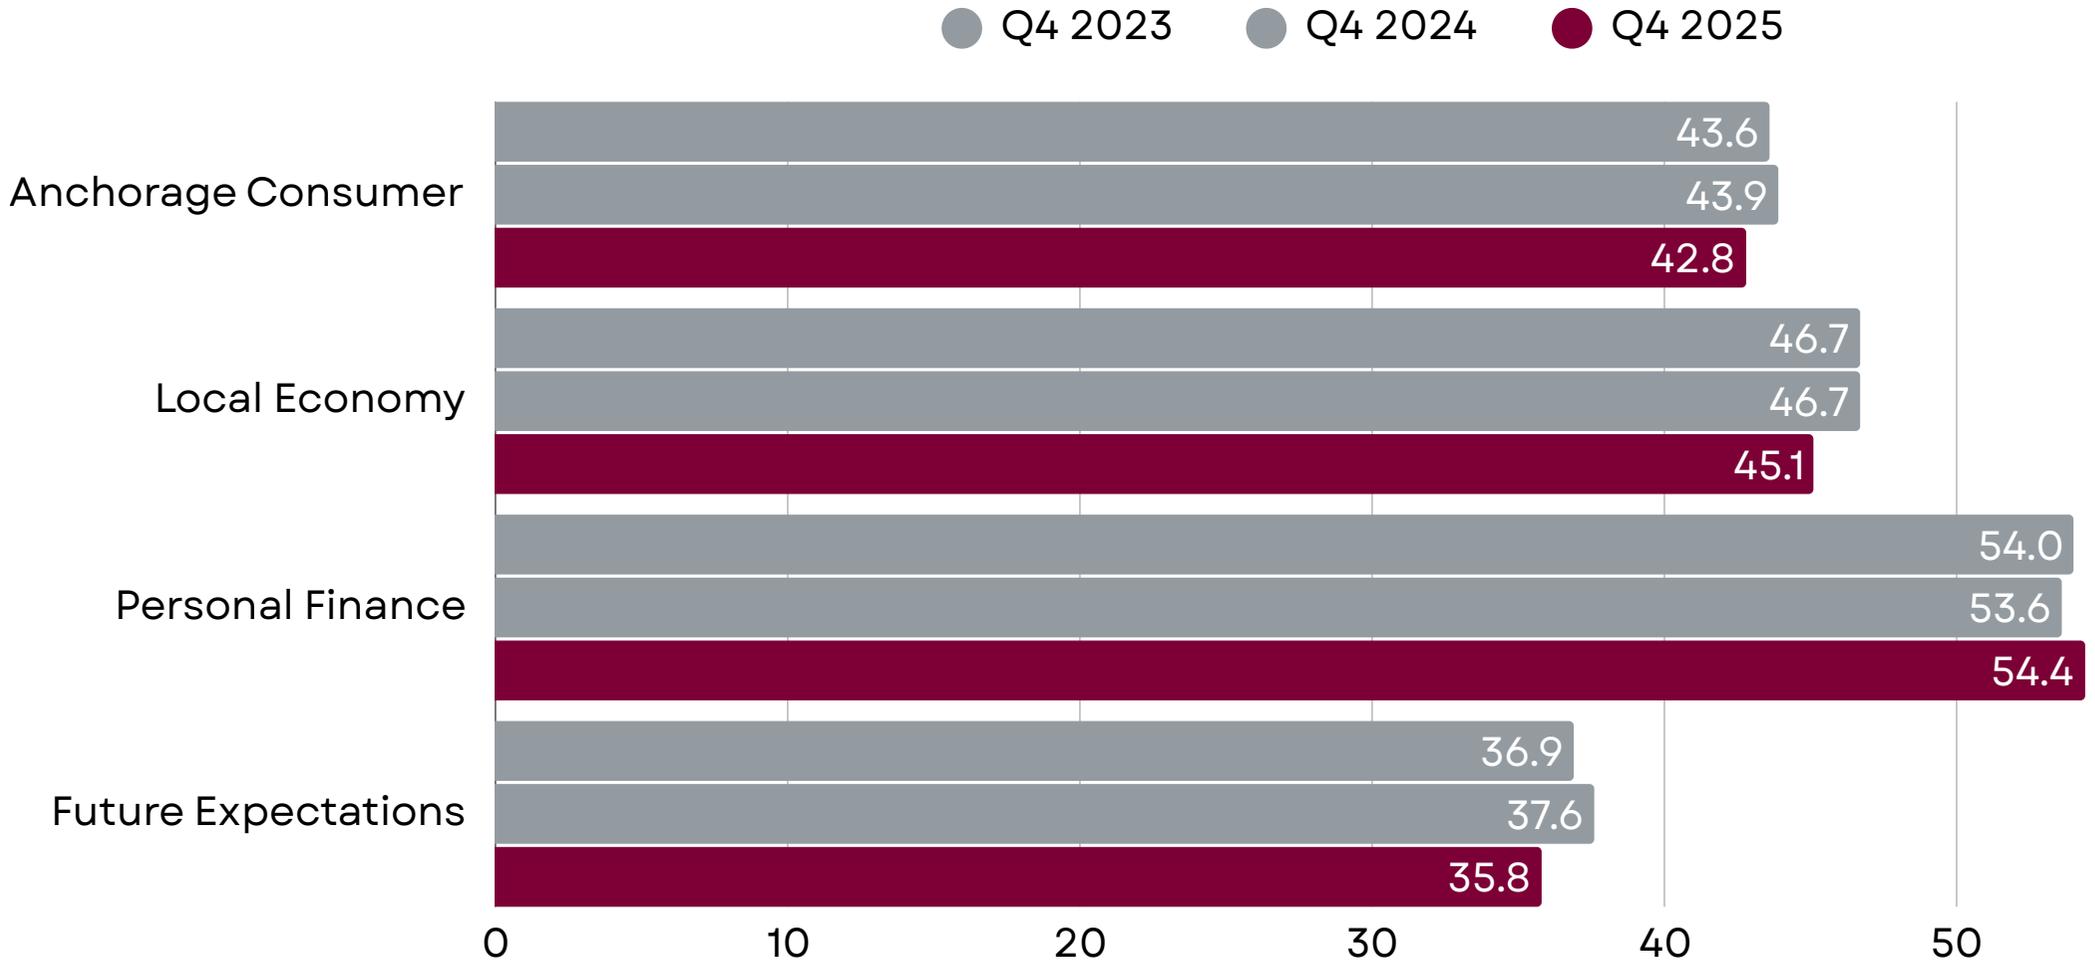

Furniture Enterprises
OF ALASKA, INC.

Research provided by:

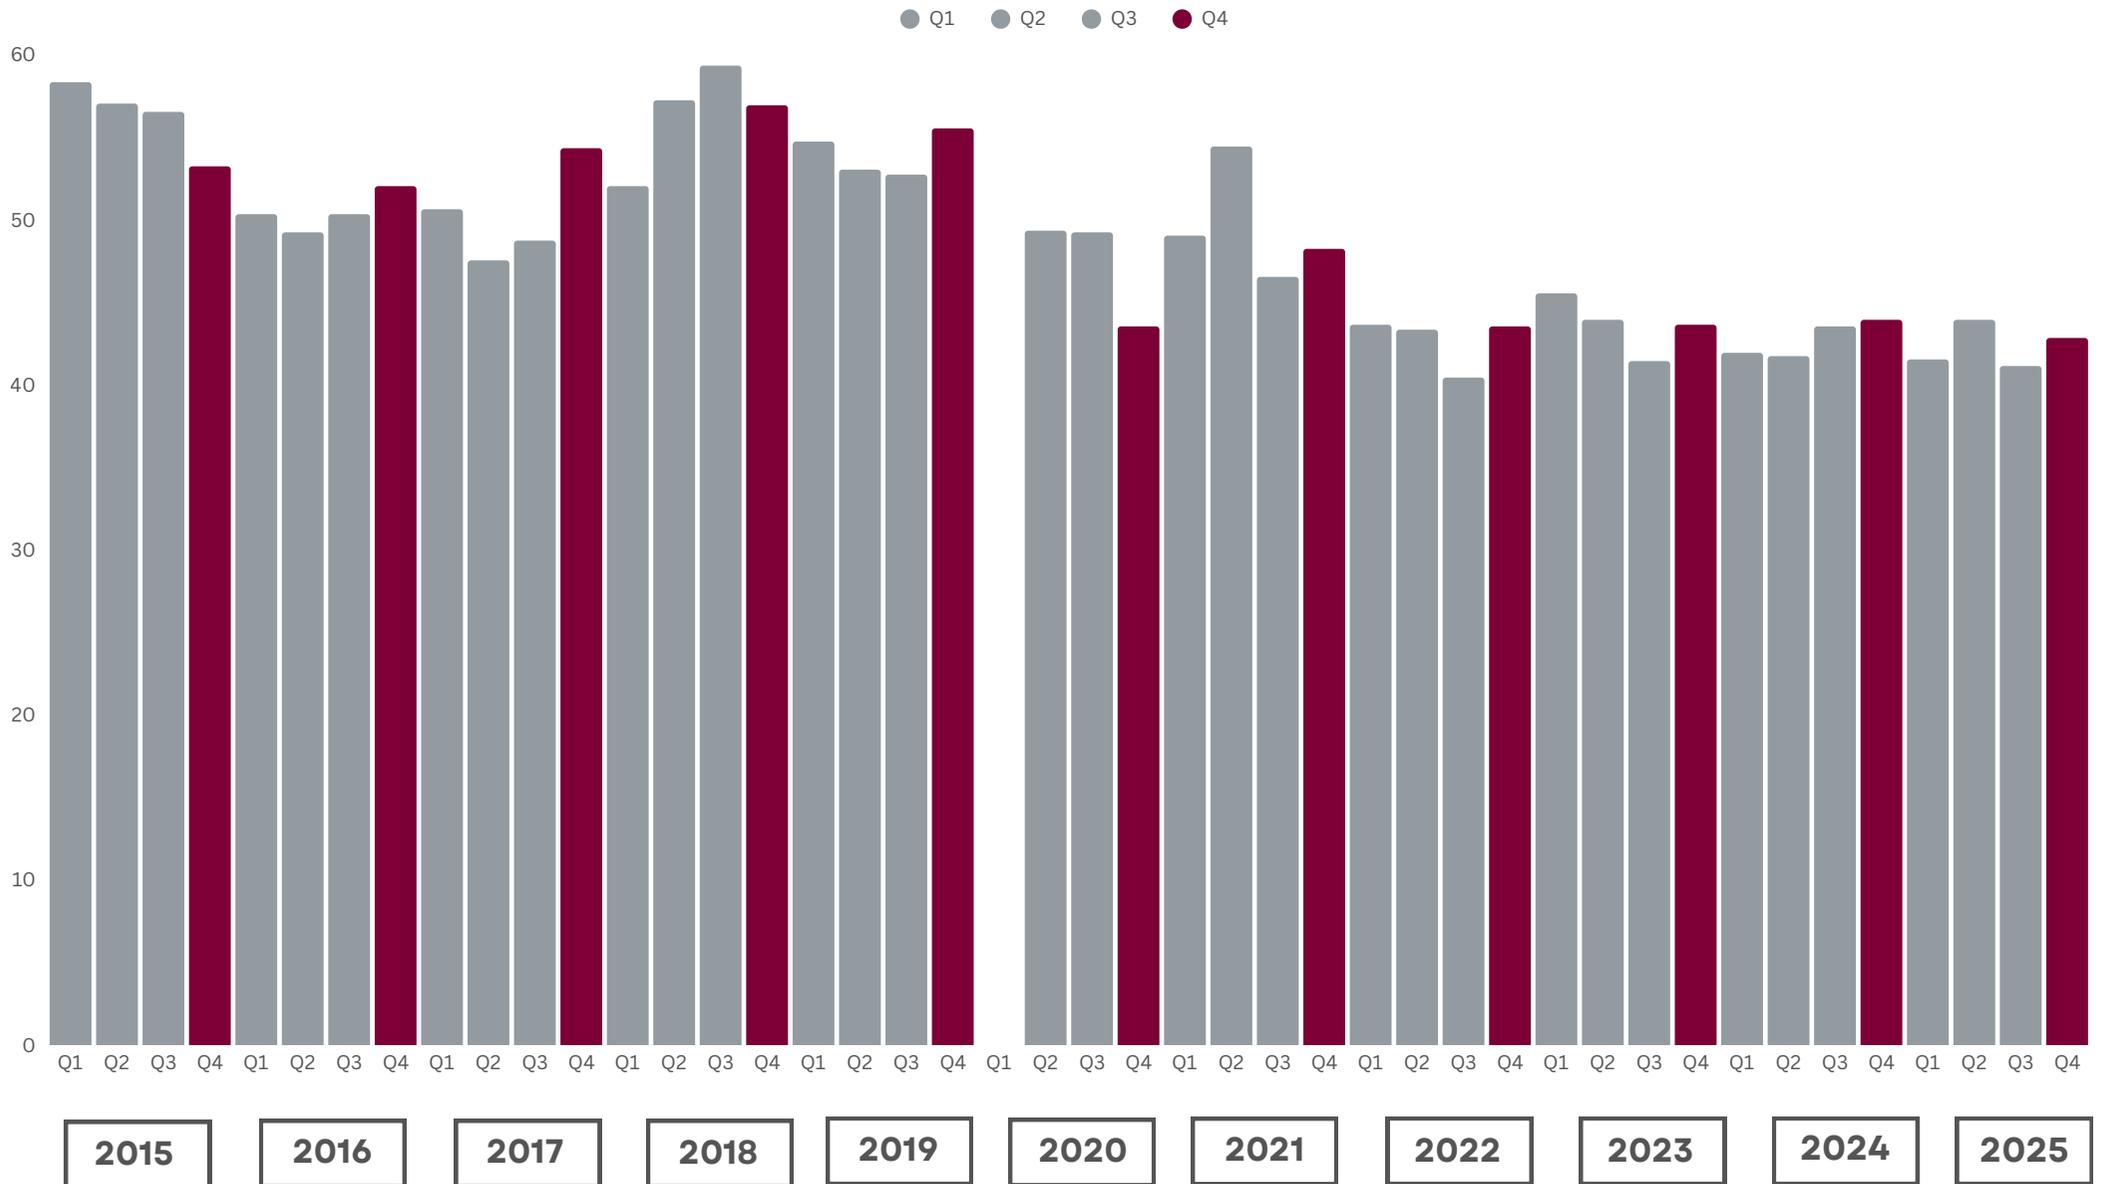

Q4 Anchorage Consumer Confidence Index Results (%)

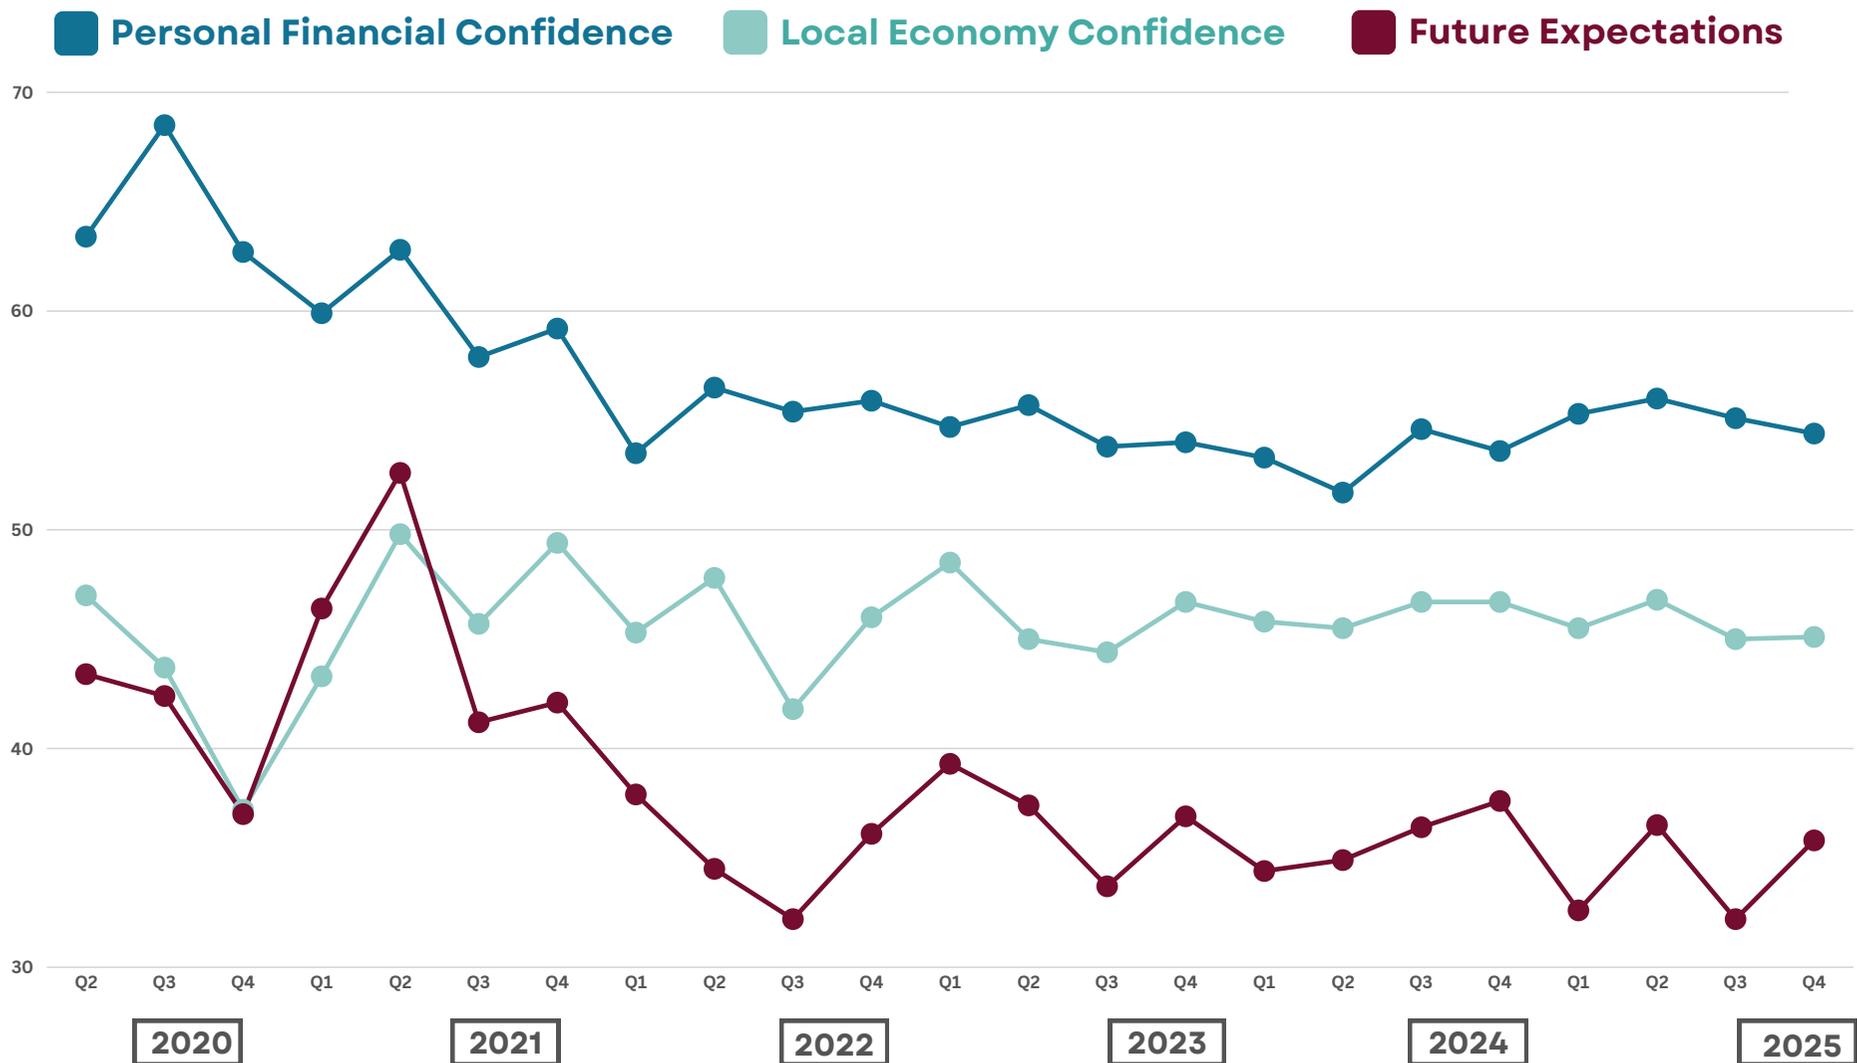

The index combines 3 components of consumer sentiment which are scored on a 100 point scale. Results above 50 indicate optimism and results below 50 indicate pessimism. The Anchorage Consumer Optimism Index (ANCI) for Q4 2025 (October–December) was 42.8%, slightly up from Q3 2025. This marks the lowest annual consumer confidence since pre 2020 at 42.3%.

ANCHORAGE CONSUMER OPTIMISM INDEX

At 42.8, the Anchorage Consumer Optimism Index is in pessimistic territory, and is at a 10 yr low.

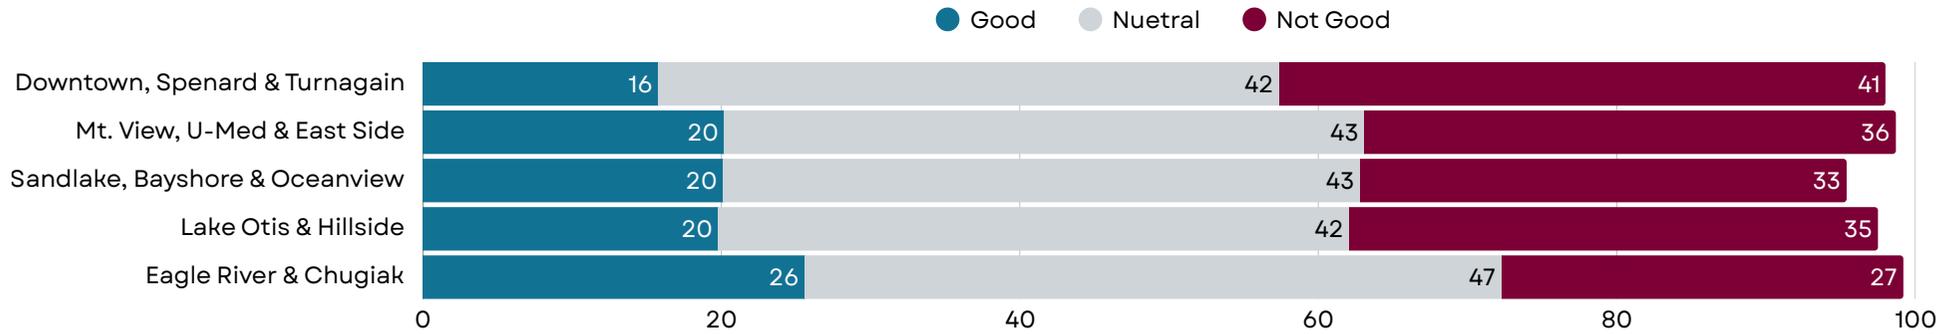

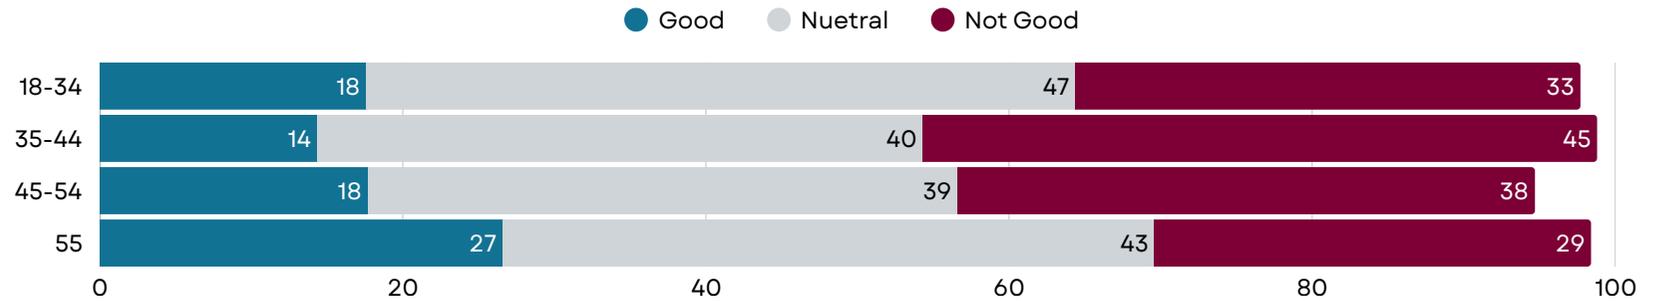

Personal Financial Confidence remained steady from Q3 2025 and has slightly declined compared to its average since 2022. At 45.1, Local Economy Confidence is slightly below its two-year average of 46.0. It continues to track between Personal Financial Confidence and Future Expectations, mirroring the pattern seen in 2016 and earlier years. Since 2020, Local Economy Confidence has remained relatively stable, while Future Expectations has trended downward. In Q4 2025, Future Expectations recovered slightly from Q3, which tied the record low previously seen in Q2 2020.

How would you grade your local economy (%)?

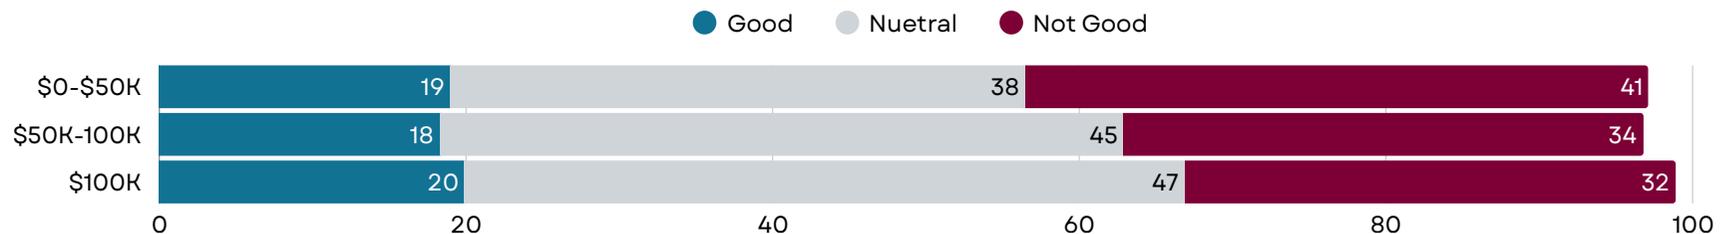

Area

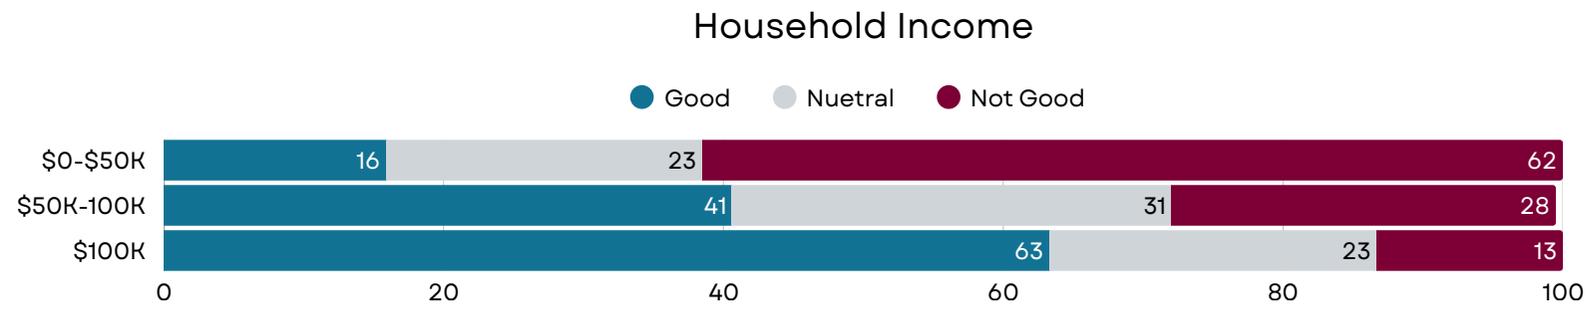

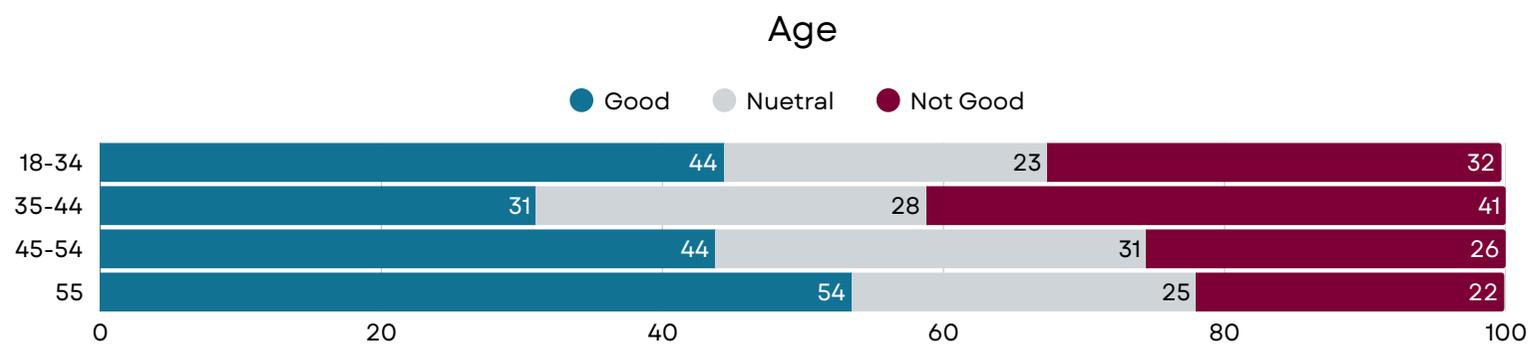

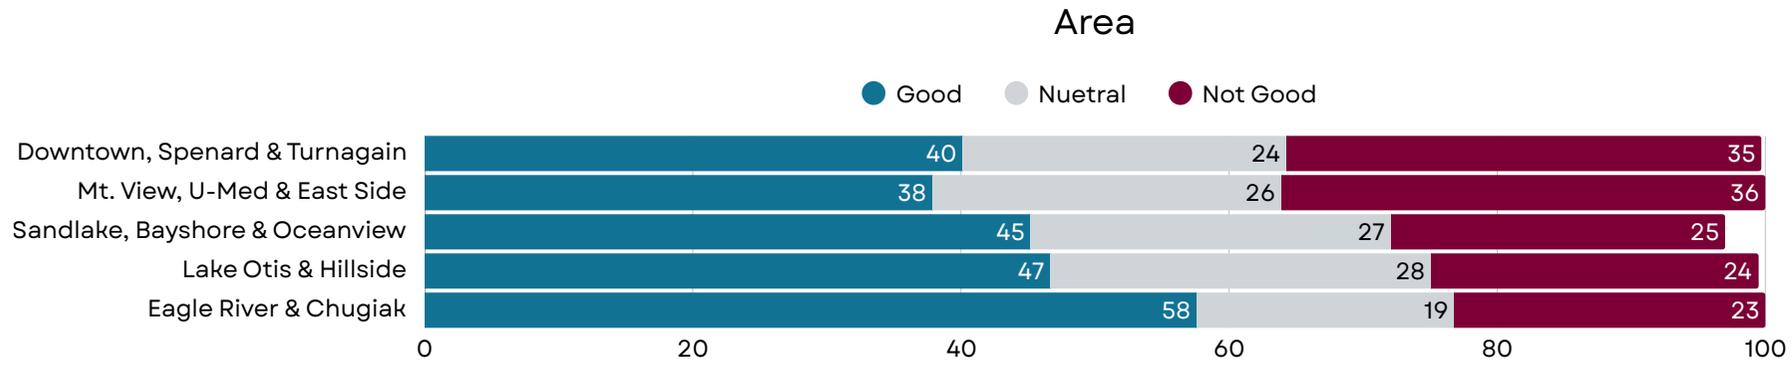

Age

Household Income

How would you grade your family's financial situation (%)?

You bring out the best in us.

Providence Alaska Medical Center (PAMC) is honored to be the only hospital in Alaska recognized as Best Regional Hospital in U.S. News & World Report's 2025-2026 Best Hospitals Rankings. PAMC was also recognized as high performing in the treatment of two adult specialties and 10 procedures and conditions, more than any other treatment center in the state.

Our award-winning care reflects the exceptional work of our caregivers, providers and community partners, who share our commitment to ensuring Alaskans get the best care possible close to home.

Learn more at Providence.org/PAMCawards.

Thank You to Our Diamond Investors

Providence

Furniture Enterprises
OF ALASKA, INC.

For more information, please visit www.aedcweb.com
510 L Street Suite 603, Anchorage, AK 99501